Dear Colleagues

We are pleased to announce the Quality in Endoscopy symposium on the topic of GI Bleeding. The European Society of Gastrointestinal Endoscopy (ESGE) is joining forces with the European Society of Gastrointestinal and Abdominal Radiology (ESGAR) and the European Association for Endoscopic Surgery (EAES). Together, we look forward to making this a truly remarkable educational course.

The GI Bleeding symposium is tailored to cater to the needs of doctors, especially our young fellows and junior physicians, across the fields of gastroenterology/endoscopy, surgery, surgical endoscopy, interventional radiology, and internal medicine. This symposium will cover topics including non-variceal upper GI bleeding, esophagogastric variceal bleeding, obscure bleeding, lower GI bleeding, post procedural bleeding, and the role of antiplatelet agents and anticoagulants in GI bleeding. Interaction, including the exchange of ideas, clinical experiences and knowledge between faculty and participants is a central element of our symposia. ESGE's Quality in Endoscopy symposia have well demonstrated that the combination of highly communicative teaching with a strong, supportive and dedicated faculty is the key to success of these meetings. Alongside senior speakers, presenters from the up-and-coming younger generation will contribute to innovative and lively didactic sessions.

We would like to encourage you to take part in this interactive meeting on a clinically relevant topic and we look forward to welcoming you to Berlin!

Yours sincerely

Hands-on training on biologic models

Hands-on training related to GI bleeding will take place on Sunday, November 30, 2014. The session will provide participants the opportunity to hone their skills under expert guidance. In order to increase contact time with the faculty specialists, numbers are strictly limited. Taken on a first come first serve basis, hands-on training is only available to 24 symposium delegates who can sign up when registering online.
